Decades have passed since BMW turned out its last airplane engine. Still, the passion remains to create machines that outperform any at ground level. As proof, we submit the new BMW M5. Nothing less than the most extraordinary 5-Series car ever built. Its engine was born of the legendary six-cylinder M1, and refined yet further to produce 310

BMW MADE MACHINES THAT FLY.
WE STILL DO.

rather energetic horses—outperforming every one of the top exotics in the process. We've also given the M5 a self-leveling suspension system, along with oversized wheels to thoroughly air-cool a massive set of antilock disk brakes.
